

Delaware River Basin Commission

2 0 0 2
2 0 0 3

The Delaware River Basin Commission (DRBC) is an interstate/federal agency that manages the water resources within the 13,539-square-mile basin covering portions of Delaware, New Jersey, New York, and Pennsylvania. This publication covers calendar years 2002 and 2003, and was produced by the DRBC's Public Information Office, with the valuable assistance of numerous commission staff.

This report is available on the commission's web site at <http://www.drbc.net>. Free copies are available upon request by contacting the DRBC by mail (P.O. Box 7360, West Trenton, NJ 08628), phone (609-883-9500) or e-mail (denise.mchugh@drbc.state.nj.us).

About the cover: The commemorative poster pictured here was created by the Pennsylvania Department of Conservation and Natural Resources in honor of the Delaware being named as Pennsylvania's "Feature River of the Year" in 2002. The poster featured the theme of that year's sojourn, "The Delaware: A Revolutionary River," and included photos provided by the DRBC.